

THE SOLDIER AT REST FEDERAL OF EX-PRESIDENT DAVIS YESTERDAY.
THE GRAND MILITARY PROCESSION
The Streets Along the Line of March Covered With People—The Impressive Ceremonies.
NEW ORLEANS, La., December 11.—The day, marking the threatening and oppressive character of the weather during the past several days, could not have been more propitious. The portentous, pregnant, looking clouds of the night previous and the dark banks of heavy fog that prevailed during the early part of this morning had wholly disappeared by 7 o'clock, as the sun burst forth and a beautiful southern summer day dawned on the thousands of people, representing the prominence, wealth and civilization of the southern states. Six or seven governments were here, attended by staffs, and bringing with them great delegations of people.
The military parade will be a marked one. A large number of companies from Georgia, Texas, Mississippi, Alabama and here, and the Louisiana state national guard will participate.
The streets along the line of march were crowded with people from all over the country.
THE FLORAL DECORATIONS. They came from every state and city in the south, and are displayed in their city and beauty. The town is crowded from end to end with the most elaborate showings of black. The business fronts and residences that were barren of flowers yesterday are covered this morning, and every bit of building there is in the city is covered with flowers.
As early as this morning the streets were thronged with soldiers and firemen in uniform; members of various civic organizations and representatives of every profession, association and all en route to their respective meeting stations, whence a few hours later they are to concentrate in Lafayette square.

WASHINGTON'S DAY.
CHIEF JUSTICE FULLER'S MAGNIFI-CENT ADDRESS ON WASHINGTON'S INAUGURATION Merchant Wanamaker and His Companions Make Their Appearance Among the Congressmen.
WASHINGTON, December 11.—[Special.]— Today was spent by Congress for the commemoration of the inauguration of George Washington. The scene in the hall of the house of representatives at one o'clock was magnificent, and Chief Justice Fuller's oration was one that will take its place in the annals of this country as a grand and glorious effort, sparkling with good old-fashioned democratic doctrine. The time for the celebration was fixed for one o'clock. At noon the handsome equipages of the government officers and foreign legations appeared upon Pennsylvania avenue, making their way towards the capitol. Among the first was Walker Blaine, in a government carriage, which is always at his disposal. Although there is no law for a magnificent pair of blacks, and the Japanese minister in his gaudy carriage drawn by a pair of immense bays with harness covered all over with brass ornaments. Then there were Secretaries Proctor, Tracy, Rusk, Postmaster General Wanamaker and Attorney General McKim.
ALL IN GOVERNMENT CARRIAGES which are for the use of themselves and families The two assistant secretaries of the treasury, chief clerks and commissioners of patents, government carriages. But few people knew the difference. They were in style and enjoy themselves, having carriages, horses and drivers at their disposal, although the funds for purchasing and keeping up the same comes from the government, and is appropriated for "mail wagons, to be used for official purposes only." Shortly before 1 o'clock PRESIDENT HARRISON
and Mr. Blaine drove down to the capitol.
At noon the galleries in the house were filled, but not jammed, for there had been only a very few tickets of admission given out as there were seats. At a quarter of one ex-Postmaster-General Dickinson appeared, and was warmly welcomed by the democrats. A few minutes before 1 o'clock the members of the house locked their desks carefully and moved back against the rear seats in order to make room for the senators and diplomatic corps. At 1 o'clock Assistant Clark Nichols, who hails from Texas, announced in the thunderous tones of the cowboy, which he once was, "the president of the United States and his cabinet." EVERYBODY ARM
as Mr. Harrison and Mr. Blaine, arm in arm, marched down the aisle, followed by Secretaries Proctor and Miller and Wanamaker and Rusk. Lige Halford brought up the rear, gazing admiringly upon the light wine-colored pair of "Law Partners" Miller. This was the first time Mr. Harrison and Mr. Blaine have appeared together before an audience. The president walked down the aisle smiling, but there was no applause to greet him. Mr.
Blaine, on the other hand, wore a long face, looking as if he had given up and didn't care what happened. They took seats just in front of the speaker's stand, and both held their silk hats in their hands. The other members of the cabinet sat opposite Mr. Harrison.
Then the voice of the Texan rang out again and Chief Justice Fuller and the associate justices marched in, rolled in their black gowns.
Then came the vice president, who took a seat to the right of Speaker Reed, and presided.
The following were the senators: Boss Quay, dressed in one of Wanamaker's latest style, twenty-dollar, light snuff-colored Prince Albert coats, all buttoned up to the bright-red tie that adorned his neck, and Ransom, in a pair of handsome Senator trousers of North Carolina, who was tugging away to pull down that cuff which he has been pulling at for years, and at the same time gazing
INTO THE LADIES' GALLERY attracted the most attention. Senator Ingalls, with his black coat, blue cravat, yellow pants, and shoes with uppers of light gray, walked up and took a seat next Mr. Carlisle. Then came the general of the army, accompanied by General Rosecrans, resplendent in a bright new uniform, and following them was the diplomatic corps in court dress of the various countries of the earth. There was red and blue and pink and gold and every imaginable color in their costumes, while the Chinese and Koreans were dressed in their most gaudy and flashing silk gowns. There was indeed, a marked contrast between the dress of the officials of this government and that of the representatives of the others.
When all had been seated, Vice-President Morton rattled the speakers' desk his first time, and announced prayer. Everyone arose and while Chaplain Butler, of the senate, prayed, President Harrison stood with bowed head, his body swaying slightly, while he toyed nervously with his new hat, which Wanamaker presented him yesterday from the latest selection on his Philadelphia counter. The chaplain closed with the Lord's prayer, in which the Philadelphia merchant joined audibly.
Then the Marine band, stationed in the rear lobby, struck up "Hail Columbia" and Mr.
Harrison
TURNED TO MR. BLAINE to converse, but Mr. Blaine acted as if he preferred to listen to the music, and the president turned back and gazed upon the new green carpet until the band ceased. Then Vice-President Morton introduced Chief Justice Fuller, who was escorted to the clerk's desk by Senator Hancock and Representative Bayne. His address was listened to with the closest attention, although he read from manuscript. The democrats are unanimous in the opinion that it was the finest oration ever delivered in the capitol.
JUDGE FULLER'S SPEECH In beginning his oration Chief Justice Fuller said:
"By the terms of that action of the set of congress under which we have assembled: commemoration of the historic events of inauguration of the first president of the United States, George Washington: the 30th of April A. D. 1789, was declared a national holiday and in this noble city where that event took place, the centennial anniversary has been celebrated with a magnificence of speech and song, of multitudinous assemblages, and of a naval, military and civic display, accompanied by every manifestation of a deep love of country and of profound devotion to the institutions, and of intense appreciation of the virtues and services of that illustrious man, whose assumption of the chief magistracy gave assurance of the successful setting in motion of the new government." Washington, the orator continued, had become first in war, not so much by victories over enemies or by success in strategy as by the triumphs of constancy which no reverses, no hardship, no incompetency, no treachery, could shake or overcome. He had become first in the hearts of his countrymen, because the people comprehended the greatness of their leader and recognized in him an entire absence of personal ambition, an absolute love of country, of themselves, and of mankind.
He had become first in peace by bringing to the charge of the practical working of systems he had participated in creating on behalf of the people, whose independence he had achieved, the same serene judgment, the same sagacity, same patience, same sense of duty, same far-sighted comprehension of the end to be attained, that had marked his career from its beginning.
The orator alluded briefly to the brilliant career of George Washington, but in eloquent words portrayed the growth and value of republican institutions under the administration of President Washington.
Referring to the fear of arbitrary power in respect to the presidential office, Justice Fuller said:
"But no fear, no jealousy, could be entertained of those who have indignantly repudiated the suggestion of the bestowal of kingly power;
who had unsheathed his sword with reluctance,
and laid it down with joy; who had never sought official position, but who had accepted office as a public trust; in deference to so unanimous demand for his services, as to convince him of their necessity; whose patriotism embraced the whole people, whose sense of the duty of his office was so broad as to embrace of which his presence foresaw." (Of the future greatness of the nation, Washington had no doubt, as he saw, as if far into the future, that continental dominion would glimmer to others
"as through a glass darkly.")
In referring to international relations existing between the United States and foreign nations, Justice Fuller said:
"It is a matter of congratulation that the first year of our second century witnesses the representation of the three Americas engaged in an effort to increase the facilities of commercial intercourse, and a diversifying natural course of things, differing intercourse, but forcing nothing, success in which must lead closer the ties of friendship and community, and bring the peoples of the two Americas into harmonious control of the hemisphere."
The orator then went on to make a masterly review of the constitution and amendments thereto, and cited the civil war as a searching test of the wisdom and lasting quality of our form of government. In a brilliant peroration, the chief justice said:
"And so the new century may be entered upon in a spirit of optimism, the natural result, perhaps of self-confidence, but of no less nothing in substance by experience, though it has gained in the consideration of its impetuosity; yet an optimism essential to the accomplishment of great ends; not blind to evils, but yet in fearlessness of faith; whose very consciousness of limitations of the present asserts the attainability of the untraveled world of a still grander future. No ship could sail forever over summer seas. The storms that it has weathered test and demonstrate its ability to survive the storms to come, but storms there must be until the world is more sea. But as amid the tempests in which our ship of state launched, and in times succeeding, so in times to come, with every extremity of constancy of illusion, will rise upon the angry skies, to control the whirlwind and dispel the clouds by their potent influences, while from the "clear upper sky" the steady light of the great majority of the vessel must pursue and sit shining on its sails as it comes grandly into the haven where it would be.
The orator completed his oration at 2:30, having consumed an hour and a quarter in its delivery. As his voice died away on the last word of his eloquent peroration, a storm of applause swept through the audience, which
Benediction was then pronounced by the chaplain of the house, after which "Washington's Grand March" was rendered by the Marine band. The martial strains having ceased, the vice-president declared the joint assembly dissolved, and to the stirring air of "The Star-Spangled Banner" the invited guests slowly left the chamber. The state, war, navy and treasury departments were closed at half-past twelve o'clock this afternoon, in honor of the centennial anniversary.

MR. HUGH HARRISON INJURED.
Yesterday afternoon Mr. Hugh A. Harrison, ex-deputy sixth auditor of the treasury department, Governor Gordon's brother-in-law, was seriously injured at the corner of Pen-sylvania avenue and Seventh street by being knocked down by a horse and rider. Mr. Harrison was crossing the street when he was struck by a colored man on horseback approaching, and called to him, but the horse was driven against him. He was knocked down and before he could get out of the way, a wagon was driven over him. Mr. Frank Gordon was telephoned for, and portland cement was poured over the injured limbs where he was attended by two physicians.
Lower limbs are very badly bruised. On the left side of his face is a frightful gash. However, Mr. Gordon says he is entirely out of danger tonight, and will, he has no doubt, recover rapidly. E. W. B.

SENATOR CALL INTRODUCES A RESOLUTION LOOK-ING TO THE CUBAN INDEPENDENCE.
WASHINGTON, December 11.—The vice-president presided over the senate today. The first part of the republican programme in reference to providing positions on the committee for the new senators was carried out by the resignation of Senators Morrill, Hancock, Dawes, Hoar, Allison, Frye and Manderson of their positions on the committees of census, agriculture, transportation and commerce, claims, organization and conduct of executive departments, and on the civil service and retrenchments respectively. Their successors on these committees are yet to be named.
Among the bills introduced and referred were the following:
By Mr. Hoar, for a statute and monument to John Marshall.
By Mr. Call, the following joint resolution:
That the president be and is hereby authorized and is requested to open negotiations with the government of Spain for the purpose of securing government's consent for the establishing in Cuba of a free and independent republic, such consent to be given on the pretext by Cuba to the government of Spain of such a sum of money as is equivalent both to the value of public property belonging to Spain in said island and to the relinquishment of her sovereign rights and also the securing by treaty of such commercial advantages as may be deemed desirable.
A message was received from the house to the effect that that body was now in session and ready to proceed with the ceremonies in commemoration of the inauguration of George Washington, first president of the United States.
Thereupon, on motion of Mr. Ingalls, the senate, at 12:55 proceeded to the hall of the house.
At 2:45 it returned and immediately adjourned.
In the House.
WASHINGTON, December 11.—Immediately after the chaplain's prayer, Mr. Cummings, of New York, from the ceremonial committee, reported the order of arrangement and it was adopted. The house then at 12:50 took recess for twenty-five minutes. After recess, a resolution was adopted directing the clerk to inform the senate that the house was in session and ready to proceed with the ceremonies. At the request of the speaker the members then retired to seats assigned to them.
Upon the conclusion of the ceremonial ceremonies, the house was called to order, but immediately adjourned.
He Becomes Insane, Also.
BLOOMINGTON, Ill., December 11.—There was an exciting scene in the circuit court upon the occasion of the trial of Simon Davis, a citizen of this city, on the charge of insanity.
Davis's brother was complainant and during the investigation he became suddenly violently insane and four young men were required to restrain him and take him to jail. Simon Davis was found insane and sent to Jacksonville.

FORREST CLOSES HIS ARGUMENT.
CHICAGO, December 11.—In the Cronin trial today, Forrest closed his argument which had lasted three days and a half, with an appeal to the jury for an acquittal. The court then adjourned until Friday morning, tomorrow being election day and a legal holiday.

closed and elapsed. The strange and sudden dignity of death has been added to the fine and reasonable and history, symbolized the solemn contingencies and tragic fortunes of millions of men cannot pass into the gloom that gathers around the grave without a sign or token from the surcharged bosoms of those who leave behind them when Jefferson Davis, reaching the very summit of his glorious life, goes to his God, not even the most noble can cheer the majestic mourning, the sorrowing honors of the last salute.
I am not here to stir by a breath the embers of a settled strife to seek one word of comfort to him and of the hour; what is written in the world's memory and in the books of God. But I am here to say for our help and inspiration that his man, a Christian and churchman, was a lover of all high and righteous things, as a citizen was fashioned in the old, fatal type as a soldier, was marked and fitted for more than fame, the Lord God having set on him the seal of the liberty man.
Gentle and gentle, even to the lowliest, was especially in them; tender as he was brave, he deserved to win all the love that followed him. Fearless and unselfish, he could not well escape the life-long conflict to which he was committed. Greatly and strangely misconceived, he bore unjustly and calumnies befitting his place. He suffered many and grievous wrongs, suffered most for the sake of others, and these others will remember him and his unflinching fidelity with deepening gratitude while the Potomac seeks the Chesapeake, or the Mississippi sweeps by Bartlett on its way to the Mexican sea. When on the December midnight the darkness was upon the land and the faithful and prevailing one who loved their land with a fearful heart, "if one of the mighty dead save callous," "Art thou of us?" He answered: "I am here."
Following Bishop Gallagher, Rev. Dr. Markham read a lesson, while Rev. Dr. Martin repeated a psalm, Rev. Dr. Bakewell the versicle and key, Thompson the creed; and thus ended the services at the city hall, which, although simple and brief, were wonderfully impressive. During this period, the immense group, representing every conceivable variety of religious and social predilection, profession, and nationality stood in reverential silence and with heads uncovered.
At the conclusion of the religious services the crowd was broken by a detachment of soldiers to a handsomely decorated caisson, which had been especially prepared for its reception, and on which it was to be conveyed to the cemetery.
From the caisson arises a catafalque consisting of a unique and beautifully designed canopy, measuring eight feet in length and four in width and supported by six bronze columns braced with iron rods. The canopy of the caisson is ornamented in bronze with a furred United States flag draped upon either side. The sides of the catafalque are superbly draped in black cloth with button fringes and gimp. The caisson rested on a slight elevation and the caisson was drawn by six black horses two abreast caparisoned in artillery harness and plumes and each animal led by a soldier in uniform.
FOLLOWING THE PROCESSION.
With marvelous military precision the various battalions wheeled into line, preceded by a detachment of city police and followed in turn by the clergy, pall-bearers, and so on in respect to order until the mammoth procession was formed. The procession, after leaving the city hall proceeded up St. Charles street to Calliope, and from Calliope into Canal street to Chartres, to St. Louis, to Royal, and Canal in a direct route to the cemetery. It was an hour and ten minutes passing a given point.
As the grand funeral cortege traversed the streets from the turrets of every church a bell was tolled. The clank of sabres and the tramp of iron shoes fell echoed along the interminable rows, while the solemn booming of the minute guns, from the city not directly located on the line of march or in any way remote from the scene of pageant were today literally depopulated, their inhabitants having gathered in countless numbers on the banquettes and in other available places from which an easy view of the marching columns could be had.
THE CROWD ALONG THE ROUTE.
The streets along the line of march were crowded with spectators and out on the broad avenue of the direct road to the cemetery both sides were lined with spectators for several miles. With all the tremendous gathering, the moving of the vast procession, driving and traveling about, there was scarcely a mishap or misdeed to mar the solemnity. The entry of the pageant into the beautiful cemetery, away on the quiet Metairie ridge, far from the thunder and clatter and turmoil of the busy, rushing, work-day city life, was made with all the pomp and circumstance of a military and civic procession.
AT METAIRIE CEMETERY.
Even before noon, when the religious ceremonies were just beginning, people gathered within the hallowed precincts of the romantic burying ground. They came in street cars, in trains, in carriages, in vehicles of every known description and on foot, and took up positions on the tombs and broad walks and on the scrupulously well kept lawns. Metairie is the prettiest cemetery in the south. It ranks in beauty with the handsomest burial grounds of the world. Within it lie the remains of thousands of colonial and veteran soldiers and of the tombs of military and veteran associations of New Orleans. It is in this cemetery, in subterranean vaults, that the southern chieftain has been temporarily laid to rest.
The army of northern Virginia's remains is beneath the monument of a lamented confederate leader, Stonewall Jackson. It is situated nearly half a mile from the stone entrance, nearly in the center, and surrounded by the imposing tombs of wealthy people of New Orleans. The mound is of gradual ascent, prettily laid out in parterres and richly grown with rare flowers. From the sections, stone base, a slender shaft, broken by laurel wreaths, rises to commanding heights. At its apex a heavy slab of marble bears the statue of Jackson.
THE BURIAL PLACE.
Beneath the base is an underground chamber with vaults running all around. It was in one of these that the remains of Mr. Davis were placed. The monument was decorated with extreme simplicity. The mound was covered entirely with green moss, and around the shaft was wound a chain of laurel and oak leaves.
When the procession left the city hall big furniture wagons drove up, and the mortuary chamber was emptied of its hundreds of floral offerings that came from every city and state in the south, and taken out to the cemetery.
Here an artistic hand came into play, and the flowers were arranged with most admirably effective effect, the mound being almost entirely hidden from view by THE WEALTH OF FLOWERS.
The pageant got to the cemetery a little in advance of the time it was expected to. Its vanquished was an incongruous assemblage of carriages and vehicles, and an irregular array of straggling people who walked all the way to the burial ground to do honor to the memory of the leader, cold in death. The crowd was cosmopolitan. It embraced every station in life in one endless procession. Thousands walked because there was no other means of getting out. Available trains and street railroads were packed with several divisions of the funeral pageant, and the multitude was left to take care of itself.
THE FIRST TRAIN.
It was 3 o'clock when the first special train arrived bearing uniformed Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias and civic societies of Dallas, Texas, commanded by Captain A. P.

Wozelcroft, Continental Guards of New Orleans, Lieutenants E. Skinner and Ed Dean commanding.
Benevolent and patriotic organization of New Orleans, commanded by Major A. Patten; Louisiana Rifles of New Orleans, commanded by Captain C. H. Adams.
Fall banners in carriages, then followed the funeral car, attended by Battery B, Louisiana field artillery, Captain Burnham commanding, as a guard of honor.
The second division was marshalled by General W. J. Behan, the family of the deceased in carriages, local and visiting confederate veterans association, Grand Army of the Republic, Ladies' Confederate associations, and ladies in carriages.
Third division, Marshal-General J. B. Vi-goda, governor of Louisiana, members of the general assembly and visiting governors, judiciary, state officials, foreign consuls, officers of other states, United States officials, mayor and city officials, representatives of commercial bodies.
Fourth division, Colonel A. W. Hyatt, marshal, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Knights of Honor.
Fifth division, General Charles T. Sontag, marshal; faculty and students of the university, Catholic Knights of America, British soldiers and officers of vessels in the port of New Orleans, civil, religious and benevolent associations and clubs.
Sixth division, marshalled by Chief Engineer Thomas O'Connell, was composed of the fire department of the city.
Services in Other Places.
Appropriate services were held in Baltimore, Richmond, Stanton, Norfolk, Danville, Lexington, Va., Charleston, W. Va., Montgomery, Birmingham, Mobile, Ala., Raleigh, Charlotte and Wilmington, N. C., Charleston and Columbia, S. C., Chattanooga and Nashville, Tenn.—in fact in all southern cities. Executives in St. Louis also met and passed resolutions.
Mr. Davis's Old Body Servant.
RALEIGH, N. C., December 11.—James H.
Jones, who was the body servant of Jefferson Davis at the time of his capture, and has for many years been a resident of this city, today sent the following dispatch:
"RALEIGH, N. C., December 11.—To Mayor Shupe, Richmond, Va.: My great desire was to be the driver of the remains of my old master to their resting place. I was unable to join the delegation from this city. I am deprived of the opportunity of showing my lasting appreciation for my best friend, JEFFERSON DAVIS.
At the memorial services today he had a seat immediately in front of the stage. When Mr. Davis entered the hall, I stepped forward and called to go to his room and talk "My friend, James Jones."

At the University of Virginia.
UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA, December 11.— [Special.]—At a students' mass meeting here today, appropriate resolutions relative to the death of Jefferson Davis were passed.
STILL WITHOUT A QUORUM.
The Montana Legislature Unable to Organize—A Republican School.
HELENA, Mont., December 11.—The situation in the Montana legislature is practically unchanged today. The democratic house has been without a quorum this week. This morn-ing's Independent (democratic) claims to have unearthed a republican plot to arrest, under an old territorial statute, some democratic members-elect to the senate and take them to the state prison. The republican school of Helena would declare a quorum present and state that it was organized. The republicans claim that the senate will organize before Saturday. If so it will probably be done by seating Watson, of Fergus county, who claims that McNamara, who holds the certificate of election, is ineligible on account of holding the position of post trader under the government. The effort at a compromise between the two houses has failed, the republican house demanding the organization of the senate before appointing a committee to investigate the alleged frauds in precinct thirty-four. There are no evidences whatever of any violence and no more to be feared.
Later.—The senate has ordered the sergeant-at-arms to bring in democratic members-elect.
He found several of them, but they claimed they had taken no oath of office and were private citizens and refused to go. The sergeant-at-arms did not attempt to use force.
ATLANTIAN IN BOSTON.
Mr. Grady and His Party Arrive at the Hub.
BOSTON, December 11.—The Merchants' association's guests from the south, led by Mr.
Henry Grady, arrived today and went to the Hotel Vendue. The party includes, besides Mr.
Grady, Evan P. Howell and W. A.
Hempstead, of THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, J. H. Hilder, a prominent southern newspaperman; W. B. Lowe and C. A. Collier, capitalists; S. M. Imman, cotton merchant; John A. Fitten, who represents hardware interests; R. D. Spaulding, boots and shoes; T.
D. Meador, groceries; J. W. Rankin, druggs; George M. Brown, machinery; Clarence Knowles, insurance; Judge George Hillier and Patrick Calhoun. They will be the guests of E. B. Haskell this evening, and will be entertained by the Bay State club at the Parker house at two o'clock Friday. They will probably leave for the south Friday night or early Saturday morning. Ex-President Cleveland and Andrew Carnegie, who are to attend the dinner, will arrive Thursday evening accompanied by Mrs. Cleveland and Mrs.
Carnegie. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland will be the guests of Joseph Burnett and will return to New York Friday afternoon.
Coal and Iron Consolidation.
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., December 11.—The largest consolidation of coal and iron property ever made in Alabama was effected here today. A declaration of incorporation was filed for uniting the Debardeleben Coal and Iron company, the Bessemer Iron and Steel company, Little Belle Iron company and the Euroda Iron company. The name of the consolidated company will be the Debardeleben Coal and Iron company. The capital stock is ten million dollars. The new company has seven furnaces at Oxmoor and five at Bessemer and one hundred thousand acres of coal and iron lands in the Birmingham district. The property is now in operation seven coal mines, with a combined output of five thousand tons daily, including the famous Blue creek mines. The combined capacity of the furnaces is eight hundred tons daily, five or more being now worked on sixty miles of red mountains owned by the company. The president of the new company is Henry P.
Debardeleben.
The Hog Island Trouble Settled.
WASHINGTON, December 11.—The boundary dispute between Maryland and Virginia over the Hog Island oyster beds was settled today at a conference between the governors and attorney generals of the two states. The legal representatives came to the conclusion that the chances were overwhelmingly in favor of the decision by the courts that Hog Island state are in open waters, and they therefore, agreed that it would be unwise in Virginia to contend for possession.
Speaker Reed's Announcement.
WASHINGTON, December 11.—It is the belief about the house that Speaker Reed will announce the rest of his committee one week from tomorrow, so that they may be at work during holiday recess.

country, of themselves, and of mankind.
He had become first in peace by bringing to
the charge of the practical working of systems
he had participated in creating on behalf of the people, whose independence he had
achieved, the same serene judgment, the same
sagacity, same patience, same sense of duty,
same far-sighted comprehension of the end to
be attained, that had marked his career from
its beginning.
The orator alluded briefly to the brilliant
career of George Washington, but in eloquent words portrayed the growth and value
of republican institutions under the administration of President Washington.
Referring to the fear of arbitrary power in respect to the presidential office, Justice Fuller said:
"But no fear, no jealousy, could be entertained of those who have indignantly repudiated
the suggestion of the bestowal of kingly power;
who had unsheathed his sword with reluctance,
and laid it down with joy; who had never
sought official position, but who had accepted office as a public trust; in deference to so unanimous demand for his services, as to convince him of their necessity; whose patriotism
embraced the whole people, whose sense of
the duty of his office was so broad as to embrace
of which his presence foresaw." (Of the future greatness of the nation, Washington had
no doubt, as he saw, as if far into the future, that continental dominion would glimmer to others
"as through a glass darkly.")
In referring to international relations existing between the United States and foreign nations, Justice Fuller said:
"It is a matter of congratulation that the first year of our second century witnesses the representation of the three Americas engaged in an effort to increase the facilities of commercial intercourse,
and a diversifying natural course of things, differing
intercourse, but forcing nothing, success in which
must lead closer the ties of friendship and community, and bring the peoples of the two Americas
into harmonious control of the hemisphere."
The orator then went on to make a masterly review of the constitution and amendments thereto,
and cited the civil war as a searching
test of the wisdom and lasting quality of our
form of government. In a brilliant peroration,
the chief justice said:
"And so the new century may be entered upon in a spirit of optimism, the natural re-
nothing in substance by experience, though it
has gained in the consideration of its impetuosity; yet an optimism essential to the accomplishment of great ends; not blind to evils,
but yet in fearlessness of faith; whose very
consciousness of limitations of the present asserts the attainability of the untraveled world
forever over summer seas. The storms that it has weathered test and demonstrate
more sea. But as amid the tempests in which our ship of state launched, and in times succeeding, so in times to come, with every extremity of constancy of illusion, will rise upon the angry skies, to control the whirlwind and dispel the clouds by their potent influences, while from the "clear upper sky" the
steady light of the great majority of the
vessel must pursue and sit shining on its sails as it comes grandly into the haven where
it would be.
The orator completed his oration at 2:30, having consumed an hour and a quarter in
its delivery. As his voice died away on the last word of his eloquent peroration, a storm of applause swept through the audience, which
Benediction was then pronounced by the
chaplain of the house, after which "Washington's Grand March" was rendered by the Marine band. The martial strains having ceased, the vice-president declared the joint assembly
dissolved, and to the stirring air of "The Star-Spangled Banner" the invited guests slowly left the chamber. The state, war, navy and
treasury departments were closed at half-past
twelve o'clock this afternoon, in honor of the centennial anniversary.

MR. HUGH HARRISON INJURED.
Yesterday afternoon Mr. Hugh A. Harrison,
ex-deputy sixth auditor of the treasury department, Governor Gordon's brother-in-law,
was seriously injured at the corner of Pen-sylvania avenue and Seventh street by being
knocked down by a horse and rider. Mr. Harrison was crossing the street when he was struck by a colored man on horseback approaching, and called to him, but the horse
was driven against him. He was knocked down and before he could get out of the way, a wagon was driven over him. Mr. Frank Gordon was telephoned for, and portland cement was poured over the injured
limbs where he was attended by two physicians.
ever, Mr. Gordon says he is entirely out of
cover rapidly. E. W. B.

ING TO THE CUBAN INDEPENDENCE.
WASHINGTON, December 11.—The vice-president presided over the senate today. The first part of the republican programme in reference to providing positions on the committee for the new senators was carried out by the resignation of Senators Morrill, Hancock, Dawes, Hoar, Allison, Frye and Manderson of
their positions on the committees of census,
agriculture, transportation and commerce,
claims, organization and conduct of executive departments, and on the civil service and retrenchments respectively. Their successors
on these committees are yet to be named.
Among the bills introduced and referred
were the following:
By Mr. Hoar, for a statute and monument
to John Marshall.
By Mr. Call, the following joint resolution:
That the president be and is hereby authorized
government of Spain for the purpose of securing
government's consent for the establishing in Cuba
of a free and independent republic, such consent
to be given on the pretext by Cuba to the government of Spain of such a sum of money as is equivalent both to the value of public property belonging to Spain in said island and to the relinquishment of
of such commercial advantages as may be deemed desirable.
A message was received from the house to the
ready to proceed with the ceremonies in commemoration of the inauguration of George Washington, first president of the United States.
Thereupon, on motion of Mr. Ingalls, the senate, at 12:55 proceeded to the hall of the house.
At 2:45 it returned and immediately adjourned.
In the House.
WASHINGTON, December 11.—Immediately
after the chaplain's prayer, Mr. Cummings, of New York, from the ceremonial committee, reported the order of arrangement and it was adopted. The house then at 12:50 took recess for twenty-five minutes. After recess, a resolution was adopted directing the clerk to inform the senate that the house was in session and ready to proceed with the ceremonies. At the request of the speaker the members then retired to seats assigned to them.
Upon the conclusion of the ceremonial ceremonies, the house was called to order, but immediately adjourned.
He Becomes Insane, Also.
BLOOMINGTON, Ill., December 11.—There
was an exciting scene in the circuit court
upon the occasion of the trial of Simon Davis,
a citizen of this city, on the charge of insanity.
Davis's brother was complainant and during
the investigation he became suddenly violently insane and four young men were required to restrain him and take him to jail. Simon Davis was found insane and sent to Jacksonville.

FORREST CLOSES HIS ARGUMENT.
CHICAGO, December 11.—In the Cronin
trial today, Forrest closed his argument which had lasted three days and a half, with an appeal to the jury for an acquittal. The court then adjourned until Friday morning, tomorrow
being election day and a legal holiday.

closed and elapsed. The strange and sudden dignity of death has been added to the fine and reasonable and history, symbolized the solemn
contingencies and tragic fortunes of millions of
men cannot pass into the gloom that gathers around
the grave without a sign or token from the sur-
charged bosoms of those who leave behind them when Jefferson Davis, reaching the very summit of his glorious life, goes to his God, not even the most noble can cheer the majestic mourning, the sorrowing honors of the last salute.
I am not here to stir by a breath the embers of a settled strife to seek one word of comfort to him
and of the hour; what is written in the world's
say for our help and inspiration that his man, a Christian and churchman, was a lover of all high
and righteous things, as a citizen was fashioned in
the old, fatal type as a soldier, was marked and
fitted for more than fame, the Lord God having set on him the seal of the liberty man.
Gentle and gentle, even to the lowliest, was espe-

THE GEORGIA MONUMENT

THE WORK THAT IS BEING DONE IN ATLANTA.

The Two Thousand Dollar Mark Has Been Passed—The Subscriptions That Were Received Yesterday.

The monument fund grows daily. Yesterday was not a good day for the canvassers, owing to many business houses being closed, but despite that the returns were gratifyingly large.

Today the committees will go to work in earnest. Alabama, Whitehall and other principal streets have not been canvassed, but will doubtless be thoroughly worked today.

Everybody should subscribe. Georgia's monument should be the grandest of all those raised to the memory of the great leader—should be one worthy of the first city of the southern states.

Yesterday's Subscriptions.

The total of yesterday's subscriptions was $385.75. The tabulated reports are given below.

The Decatur street committee, Mr. Corrigan and Mr. Smith, reports that Mr. W. W. Goodrich, the architect, offered to this subcommittee to draft and submit as many preliminary plans as would be necessary, and when one is selected for the monument he will furnish plans and specifications and superintend the entire work gratuitously.

From New Orleans comes the following:

On Train, Near New Orleans, December 10th, 1889—Editors Constitution: I hereby declare that I will hand you a return from New Orleans, and of my three little boys under ten years of age, who wish to have the honor of contributing to such glorious objects.

KETTLE JACK'S GANG

Nearly Wiped Out by the Settlers—A Lynching Was Out in Wyoming.

St. Louis, December 11.—A special to the Republic from Cheyenne, Wyoming, says: A report comes from the north to the effect that the people of Big Horn basin, Johnson county, have broken up Kettle Jack's gang of thieves and cut-throats, by lynching some of them and driving the remainder out of the country.

Kettle Jack and companions arrived in that region a year ago, and have since lived like barbarians.

After being reinforced by a number of desperate characters they began to plunder the settlers. At first they only slaughtered beef and stole food, but growing bolder, commenced to turn horses into Utah and Montana.

Farmer Jones and two grown sons pursued the gang and made a fight for some of the stolen property but were shot down. Finally people living in the basin, some five hundred in number, lived in mortal terror of Kettle Jack's band. Jack made captive of and forced into marriage the daughter of a leading citizen. The father headed a rescue party, but the rescuers were defeated with the loss of two killed and half a dozen wounded.

Jack grew bolder, and the citizens determined to wipe out the outlaws. They succeeded in storming the camp of the desperadoes, and the lynching followed.

THAT JOHNSTOWN ACCIDENT.

Further Particulars About the Panic in the Theater.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., December 11.—Again has this ill-fated town been visited by disaster. This time it was the "cry of fire" in the theater that sent nearly a score of lives into eternity, and mangled about seventy-five, many probably fatally injured.

Park's opera house, where the catastrophe occurred, is a three-story building situated on Main street, near the corner of Franklin, and was used as a dining room for several months after the flood. The building has for a long time been considered unsafe, and many people could not be hired to attend any kind of entertainment there.

There were about five hundred people, principally women and children, in the house last night. About 10:30, as the performance was about closing, there came an alarm of fire sounded by firemen stationed near the opera house, caused by discovery of fire in Dr. Wakefield's stable in Vennville.

The alarm being sounded so close, greatly excited the audience and they immediately rushed for the street. They were met at the entrance by a crowd from the outside who thought the fire was in the opera house. The crowds coming together on the close stage, and the frantic efforts of those in the rear of the outgoing crowd caused a terrible jam, which was made still worse by persons jumping from the galleries on to the heads of those on the stairs. The firemen had to turn their hose on those on the outside to ease the jam, and when the injured could be removed, the stage was found to be filled almost to the level of the upper floor with dead and dying. Thirteen persons were taken out dead.

THE INFLUENZA.

The Disease Spreading in Paris—Its Appearance in Berlin.

PARIS, December 11.—The influenza epidemic in this city is spreading. The disease has made its appearance in the barracks, markets and Odeon Centrale. A medical report upon the prevalent epidemic shows that there are 670 cases among the employees in the great dry goods store, Magasin du Louvre. There are all cases of a simple benign influenza, which ordinarily lasts only about four days. Complications arise in some cases, which make it more serious. In other large stores it prevails to an extent equal to that in Louvre. No special preventative are called for, and there is no cause for uneasiness.

VIENNA, December 11.—The board of health deny that influenza is epidemic in this city. They say there are only a few isolated cases of the disease here.

BREMEN, December 11.—Notwithstanding the official denial published yesterday in the National Zeitung that there was no influenza here, the epidemic is making itself felt. Professor Virchow is one of the many sufferers.

THE DIAMONDS STOLEN.

LIBROS, December 11.—The express of Brazil has received a telegram from Rio de Janeiro informing her that all her jewels had been stolen, and that the police were unable to find the case. This loss will be a heavy blow to the imperial family. In the collection of jewels were comprised the finest Brazilian diamonds there are in the world. If the Brazilian republic should decline to continue Pedro's income, the loss of these treasures will be severely felt, as they were looked upon as the chief immediate resource of the family.

Accident in Columbia.

COLUMBIA, S. C., December 11.—By the premature explosion of a cannon used in firing his eyesight, R. W. Blanton had a hand shattered, his arm lacerated and was slightly injured. The cannon was that used in firing the salute when South Carolina seceded from the union. It was fired out of the river some years ago, where it had been thrown when Sherman's army was about to enter the city.

Two Painters Killed.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., December 11.—At Aniston to-day two painters, named Fred Willis and Curtis Woodman, fell from a third story window to the pavement, forty feet below, and were instantly killed.

A PECULIAR CASE.

An Orderly Citizen Arrested for the Crime of Speaking to a Woman on the Streets.

Citizens of Atlanta will soon begin to inquire whether or not a man can have any privileges on the streets of the city.

Late yesterday evening a man named Currier, apparently an honest mechanic, passed by a woman on Decatur street, and she remarked that she had not seen him for a long time.

"No," he replied, "I have not seen you for a long time."

Only a few words passed between them, but he turned the corner one way and she the other. That is his story.

Two policemen came up and arrested him and carried him to the stationhouse.

The woman looked on with a watch as collateral for his appearance before the recorder today on a charge of talking to a lone woman on the street.

Mr. Currier was entirely sober and appeared to feel deeply mortified at his arrest, confining himself in a most orderly manner and referring the statement that he did not know the woman and only spoke to her in response to a remark that she made to him.

He left his watch and went on home where he will be held in their custody Thursday night.

The trial will be watched with interest today.

GEORGIA NEWS BRIEFED.

Mr. W. M. Felker, of Dalton, died Monday morning after a very brief illness.

The citizens of Athens will meet in mass meeting Friday to discuss the erection of a new hotel.

The festival and fair of the Dalton Guards will be held in their army Thursday night.

The gingham on the Buggs place of J. S. Hamilton estate, in Columbia county, was burned yesterday. Loss not known.

Mr. Fred W. Sutton, auditor of the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad, has arrived in Thomasville from Chicago, and will remain during the winter.

Col. A. F. Wright, the chairman of the Thomasville committee finance committee, has received the new park bonds.

The Thomas county commissioners have decided to build justice court houses in each district after July 1st next.

The death of Mr. George S. Riven, of Sparta, Georgia, one of the most successful and enterprising and wealthy farmers of Hancock county.

The gloom of Mr. Riven, in Hancock county, with fine farms of cotton, has been destroyed by fire.

FOR WIDOW AND CHILD.

SUBSCRIPTIONS ANNOUNCED FROM ALL PARTS OF GEORGIA.

The Work That Was Done in Atlanta—This City Has Subscribed About $2,000 so far—The Boxes Not Opened.

Memorial services yesterday, all over the south, were a fitting tribute to the memory of the one man in whose life and death the southern states had a common interest, a common sorrow.

Honor like that was never paid before. He was a private citizen—an old man, a poor man, disfranchised.

The tribute yesterday was to his nobility and purity of character, his invincible adherence to his views of right, and his chivalrous soul.

It was paid in reverence and sorrow.

The other duty—that of providing for his wife and daughter comes next. Willing hearts were given the opportunity yesterday of aiding in this, and the work of love was done.

Some time since, realizing the importance of getting the different committees to work at once, THE CONSTITUTION telegraphed each of them, asking them if they accepted the trusteeship, and urging that the subscriptions come in at once. The responses received from the trustees and the responses from the people show how well this work has been begun.

It remains with the people of Georgia to see that the good work is kept up until the desired sum is raised.

Complete returns have not been received, but there is little doubt that the entire amount—one hundred thousand dollars—was subscribed.

Atlanta's subscription to this fund foots up now about $3,000.

ATLANTA'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE FUND.

About $300 was subscribed yesterday. Fifty dollars of this amount came by telegram from Major Livingston Mims.

The bulk of the other $250 was subscribed by the physicians of the city.

Mr. Phil Dodd subscribed $10.

The boxes were not opened last night and the amount collected yesterday could not be definitely ascertained because Mr. Porter, who held the keys, left for Calhoun, Ga., with the keys in his pocket.

The following subscriptions to this fund came in a letter yesterday to THE CONSTITUTION:

Lemuel M. Park, $10.00
Howard Park, 5.00
Henry B. Park, 5.00
Emory R. Park, 5.00
Total, $30.00

"Let's give Fido a dose of S. S. S., which Mamma gave us to cure those ugly boils and pimples."

S. S. S. is the remedy for children because it is a simple vegetable compound, prepared from the roots gathered from the forests, and contains no mineral at all nor any poison of any kind. It cures by eliminating the impurities of the blood, thus assisting nature.

If there is or has been any consumption in your family, you should give your children S. S. S. It will gently stimulate the action of the lungs, and enable nature to properly develop the child. If there is scrofula, you should not fail to give S. S. S. It is the only remedy which has ever cured this disease. For boils, pimples, blotches, etc., on children S. S. S. is superior to all other medicines. It acts gently, it forces out the impurities and builds up the child from the first dose.

We will mail a treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases to all who will send their address to us.

THE BISHOP'S TRIBUTE.

(THE GREATEST EXPONENT OF DUTY FOR DUTY'S SAKE.)

Interesting Services at St. Luke's Cathedral Yesterday Morning—Eloquent Words About a Life Full of Greatness.

"Weary of earth and laden with my sin I look at heaven and long to enter in." Singing this hymn, the choristers of St. Luke church took their places about the chancel yesterday morning.

Following them came the Episcopal clergy of Atlanta—Deacon Hunt, Mr. Funsten, Mr. Barrett, and last Bishop Beckwith.

Most of the Atlanta members of the church to which Mr. Davis belonged, were gathered to take part in the memorial services and hear Bishop Beckwith deliver an address on the man whose death all were mourning.

There was no attempt at decoration. A wreath of roses fastened to the cross on the altar, and a crown of laurel leaves hanging to the reading desk were the only outward tokens of sorrow for the dead.

The heart of every member of the congregation was thrilled with the solemnity of the occasion, however, when Bishop Beckwith addressing to the chancel rails, pronounced the eulogy of the departed.

"I am the resurrection and the life," "Clear and distinct the words echoed through the cathedral and it seemed to many there that they were listening to the burial service or the first time. Even those who knew the sad words by heart gathered a new inspiration from them as they were repeated by the bishop."

Mr. Funsten, Dr. Barrett and Deacon Hunt each delivered the portion of the service assigned to him with particular reverence and earnestness.

After the close of the service the chorister sang

"It is not death to die, To leave this world of sin."
After which Bishop Beckwith delivered his address.

BISHOP BECKWITH'S ADDRESS.

"It seemed to me," he began, "that it was not proper that today the church should celebrate appropriate service in memory of Mr. Davis. It is true that throughout this southern land thousands and tens of thousands; yet the millions of people are crowding into their halls and capitols to lay their wreaths of immortelles on the grave of the mighty chief; and it is well, I think, that amid all the pomp and circumstance of the people thronging to do reverence to the dead—it is well, I say, that the still small voice of the church should be heard. Jefferson Davis was a great man. He was a child of our church and our country. His life was laid on the altar of a great heart—which never beat but in the presence of one man—and that was the Divine Man Jesus Christ."

After explaining that he had chosen an hour for the church service so as not to interfere with the public demonstration which would follow in the capitol, Bishop Beckwith went on to say:

"In the history of this country two names will shine clear and fulgent above the rest. When the passions and the petty jealousies which are inseparable with the present age have died out, the two names which will illumine history and illustrate the power of character will be the effulgent Davis and Robert E. Lee. Both these great men were churchmen. Both were proud men whose radiant souls were led forward in the course they adopted by a sense of duty and never hindered from any danger while they felt that duty directed them."

"It is, therefore, well and fit for us to be in God's sanctuary and to think awhile on the lives of these two men. We have learned much from others, but I have learned with the most intense interest every comment that has appeared on the character of Jefferson Davis in the papers both north and south since the late war. I do not know how often I commend the hatred of the narrow-minded artisan who could not lift the veil of prejudice to view the character of one of nature's great spirits. The multitude was able to do so and through all the criticisms made of his public life NO AMOUNT OF HUMAN HATRED HAS been able to blot the purity of the unique character of Jefferson Davis. Whatever judges may claim against him, it is true that when once he believed he was obeying the voice of duty, he was obedient to the voice of God, could make him swerve from the path he had chosen."

The past is too close for this generation to see clearly, but in the future a different verdict will be rendered, and future generations will look and know it to be true, that Jefferson Davis was a greater man than that of Jefferson.

MODEL FOR THE YOUNG MEN of the south. Absolutely pure, absolutely earnest and absolutely conscientious, he is found as an illustration of duty as he is found as a model for the youth. Never counting the cost of an action he considered right, because he brought his great life to the foot of the cross and gave his inspiration from there. I think he was a great man in the days of his youth. No power could everwing from him that knowledge that he was doing what which his spirit was not or just one word was never grander than when he wore the shackles hanging to his wrists, and occupied all his life a felon."

"Once come to him of those days. The once so gentle and the smile so winning I saw on his face. He spoke no word, but the lines about his eyes spoke deep."

"The light faded from his cheeks, and the light in his eyes grew hard. He was TRANSFORMED INTO MONUMENTAL IRON, and though I did not know how long I had but enough time to see spirit, his was master-spirit and mind of death."

"Let us remember that as the future will honor Mr. Davis that he was pure, because he was honest and because of his honesty, so the future will inscribe our names on the book of life just as we are pure hearted and brave as he."

Catarrh. Davis left public life and betook himself to the retirement and privacy of his home, no office could bring him to alter his position, no money, power, position, or wealth, could draw him away from his secret retreat where in his home he sat apart almost alone, and the monumental representative of cause that was lost. So age gathered about him while he CATARRHS STOOD AT A DISTANCE, smiling always, but unable to offer consolation. At last out of the silence came a voice saying, "My dear friend, the Master is coming and calleth for three." Then the light fled its way into the shadow of the valley of death and is now in Paradise with God.

He was a child of God's church, the incarnation of principle and the greatest exponent of duty performed for duty's sake."

The image is a vertical, high-contrast scan of a textured surface, likely the cover or endpaper of an old book. A prominent vertical crease or fold line runs down the center, separating a lighter, textured left side from a darker, more shadowed right side. The left side shows a grainy, paper-like texture with some minor discoloration and a small horizontal crack. The right side is mostly black, with some faint, irregular highlights suggesting the underlying material or the binding structure. The overall appearance is aged and worn.

THE G. C. AND N. COMING

THE GRADING COMPLETED TO FIFTY MILES THIS SIDE OF CHESTER.

The Queen and Crescent Gables Up the Annapolis and Atlantic and the Annapolis and Cincinnati.

The Georgia, Carolina and Northern is expected to reach Athens by next spring. Work on the road is being pushed actively. The grading now is from the other end, coming towards the Savannah river.

Mr. Hoke Smith, who is closely identified with the project, said yesterday:

"The grading has now been completed to fifty miles this side of Chester and the rails are now being laid out from that section. The work is progressing quietly and steadily—in fact, since the work was begun, there has been no cessation or material delay. The directors will probably hold a meeting soon, and the contract will then be let for the grading of another section, from the present terminus to the Savannah river."

The location of the railroad shops is a matter of interest to the cities along the route, but Mr. Smith says that no action whatever has been taken in this matter.

The grading will be followed as closely as possible by the laying of the track, and the road will be ready for the rolling stock almost as soon as the grading is done.

The survey of the Cumberland Mountain and Tennessee River has begun near South Pittsburg. The road runs through Tracy City, on a branch of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis line, and is now being surveyed on the Cincinnati Southern. The Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis connects Bridgeport and Pittsburg, and several Atlanta people are now at work on the line.

The Louisville and Nashville report for November shows an increase over last year for that month of $243,279. From July 1 to December 1 the gross earnings were $9,000,732 as against $8,533,033 for '85—an increase of $467,700.

The Louisville and Nashville are to build eleven miles of road at a cost of $14,000 from Carpenter's Station, on Nashville and Florence, to the Sapler furnace property.

The Kansas City and Port Royal people are actively at work securing a charter for the proposed line. The route is through Chattanooga and Gainesville to Port Royal. The line is to be built in Chattanooga in a few days to fix the route.

A letter from Mr. Frank Cox, president of the Charleston, Cincinnati and Chicago, to the merchants' exchange of Charleston, says:

"The sum of $50,000 in bonds has been raised for this purpose. I am personally in favor of building our line, and giving our people an entirely new and independent line."

This was not considered entirely satisfactory. A proposition was made to the Charleston, Cincinnati and Chicago, to connect with the Charleston, Cincinnati and Chicago, and owned in Charleston. That would make the road about one hundred miles long, crossing only one river—the Santee. The cost, it was estimated, would not exceed $10,000 a mile.

This matter was brought to a meeting to be held in Charleston tomorrow (Friday). The argument is that the road, being owned in Charleston, would then certainly be run in the interest of the city.

October was an unlucky month, peculiarly so, for as far as rail accidents are concerned. The Railroad Gazette shows 190 accidents on American railways, in which fifty-one persons were killed and 1,000 injured. Not in any other month of the year were so many killed. During the month there were 112 collisions reported. In five cases where collisions occurred, the result was fatal. In the conductor or engineer forgot his orders. One of the most distressing of these was the derailment of a freight train by a wrecked locomotive on the 28th of the month, where the wreck took fire and three of the trainmen were burned to death.

J. B. Taylor, auditor of the Rome and Decatur railroad, was in the city yesterday. He reports the road as doing a flourishing business, and that the road that buys on the 15th instant will get a "daisy."

There is abundance of confirmation to the statement that the Queen and Crescent gables up the Annapolis and Cincinnati and also the Annapolis and Atlantic. Both roads belonged to the Woodstock Iron company, and the Atlanta and the Woodstock Iron company, on the 15th of the month, where the wreck took fire and three of the trainmen were burned to death.

The price paid for the road, it is stated authoritatively, was a round $10,000.

ROYAL GERMETEUR.

A Remedy that Stands Upon Its Merits—Marvelous Cures—Read.

The above preparation is astonishing the world, and cures all the most distressing diseases. It absolutely cures without fail, female diseases, and complications, catarrh, all blood, skin, and general troubles, and many other ailments, which flesh is heir to, by removing the cause. Mr. Lewis Bennett, of Chapel Hill, Atlanta, Ga., writes: "I have been afflicted with a skin disease for twenty years, so much so that the pain was at times almost unbearable. I have tried many remedies in vain. One remedy, however, I have used, and after using it I have been constantly cured of my skin disease, and physicians without fail, during all these years. I am induced by friend to try Royal GermetEUR, and I have used a bottle of it, and I am cured, as well as I feel like it."

SENATE OF GEORGIA, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, ATLANTA, GA., April 24th, 1888.—This is to certify that I have been using for some months past Ewbank's Topaz Cinchona Cordial, and have derived from it substantial benefit. Respectfully, J. B. GORDON.

Mr. J. J. Duffy offered $235 in cash for the best loaf of bread at the Piedmont exposition made of flour. There were many contestants for this prize. It is said to say that they all deserved a medal. The fact that the flour handled by Mr. Duffy is among the best sold in any market, is in itself a guarantee of the excellence of the bread made by the various parties who contested. One of the largest and best candy and cracker makers said: "The bread exhibited at the exposition made of the flour handled by Duffy is something above the ordinary. It is simply beyond the reach of competitors. I do not think I ever in my life saw as fine bread as the one made of the flour handled by Mr. Duffy is making in this direction."

The treatment is the exponent of the opinion of the people generally. "The Mr. Duffy handles and guarantees it of the best quality, and those who desire to obtain this flour can do so by calling upon him at his store."

In addition to this flour, Mr. Duffy handles the very best line of groceries of all kinds. His store is a perfect panorama of the delicacies of the season. Having been in the business for a number of years, he is well and favorably known, and the people are aware that when he represents his goods to be so and so they are just that way. General Superintendent Humphries Here Looking Into Atlanta's Needs.

A. C. Humphries, general superintendent of the United Gas company, of Philadelphia, is in the city supervising the proposed improvements which are now being commenced.

Mr. Humphries stated that $235,000 had been appropriated for the street service alone, and that the amount would be expended within the ensuing six months. The small mains in the outskirts of the city will be replaced by larger ones, and as a result the pressure of gas all over the city will be uniform. He acknowledged that the service at present is in a neglected condition, but from now on the system will be steadily improved until it is second to none in the south.

Manager Abel is entering heartily into the work of improvement and says the beneficial results will be apparent immediately.

THE OBJECTS OF THE WORK.

These have been stated by Mr. Davis as follows: "My first object in this work was to prove, by historical evidence, that the Confederate Government was a legitimate government, and that it was not a mere rebellion against a lawful government."

"My next purpose was to show, by the gallant and heroic deeds of the soldiers, that their equal struggle, how thorough was their conviction of the justice of their cause."

"In addition to the right of secession, it has not been my wish to incite to its exercise. I recognize the fact that the war showed it to be impracticable, but it is not my wish to prove it to be wrong, but to show that it may be again attempted, and that the Union may be restored to its former condition."

"The truth, however, is, that the Union, so the termination and reconciliation may forever cease."

A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood disease, which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatoid Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alternative.

Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 120th street, New York, certifies:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatoid gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes:—"One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatoid gout, and confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had quite finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood-medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, St. Woodland, Texas.

TWO WEDDINGS TODAY.

MISS ARMSTRONG WILL BE MARRIED TO MR. GLENN AT NOON

And This Evening Miss Maddox Will Be Married to Mr. Jackson—Other Society Affairs.

At noon today the wedding of Hon. W. U. Glenn and Miss Miriam Armstrong will be celebrated at St. Luke's cathedral. This evening Miss Eula Maddox will be married to Mr. H. S. Jackson, of Nashville, the ceremony being performed at the First Methodist church. Both are notable events in Atlanta society.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Selma C. Hall opened her studio at the Gould building, where she will give lessons in all the branches of art. Her studio is a charming apartment, and yesterday it was filled with beautiful flowers, the offerings from admiring friends. Mrs. Hall has been living in Atlanta some months, and last season she gave art lessons at Chautauque, where she was patronized by the best people, and where she made many Atlanta friends. Before coming to this city, she was the principal and general superintendent of the celebrated Institute of Industrial Art in Baltimore. That school is now in charge of her sister, and is one of the most flourishing institutions of the kind in the south. To it many of the wealthy and influential citizens of Baltimore have given their patronage and substantial aid, and the building is now made, from the cases and objects of art donated to it a sort of art gallery where students find everything for their development. Such a school as this Mrs. Hall proposes to found in Atlanta, and if she succeeds she will be doing a work for art which the city sorely needs. There are a number of talented artists struggling along here and longing for an art association and interchange, where their work and aims can all be brought together and discussed among themselves. Then, as the work progresses, a woman's exchange and a delectable art department will be established, which will give remunerative and delightful employment to many women who are forced to make use of their talents.

Mrs. Hall is deeply interested in the progress of her sex, and she will give lessons free to a limited number of women who are unable to pay and who prove themselves by their talent worthy of instruction. When these students receive scholarships they will be expected to render some assistance in teaching. All the drawing is taught from nature and in the spring a sketching club will be formed. The school class will draw from casts from the ancient sculptors, and this class will have outside of its regular lessons meetings on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings for social pleasure and work. There will be honorary and active members and students. The first will be composed of those who do not care to study but take an interest and pleasure in art, the second will be of those who have already some knowledge of art and will number among it several Atlanta artists and the students will, of course, be formed of beginners. There will be a board of twelve directors composed of some of Atlanta's most prominent citizens and a number of the classes will be held in the evening from seven until ten. Mrs. Hall has been a student under a number of the finest artists in America and all her work shows a high degree of cultivation and remarkable talent. All the artists here have called at her studio and all taking great interest in her plans. She will bring her teachers from Baltimore to Atlanta to assist her and the success of the school she proposes to establish will be of great pleasure and benefit to all the people here who care for art.

Next Friday evening, the Young People's Christian League, of Trinity church will have another grand concert. The first concert given by this society proved so successful that they were urged to give a repetition. It was decided that the talent could not be improved, and a new programme with the same artists has been prepared as follows:

- PART I.
1. Orchestra—Selected.
2. Recitation—"Pierrot"—Miss Mamie Johnson.
3. Duet, vocal—"I Feel Thine Angel Spirit"—Gracie Hoffman—Professor Alvin M. Smith and wife.
4. Solo, piano—(a) Pizzicato, Sylvan Ballet, Deller; (b) Hunting Song, Mendelssohn—Miss Clara Farnsworth.
5. Recitation—"Poorhouse Nan"—Miss Natalie Little.
6. Duet, Piano—"Spanish Dances"—Moszkowski—Miss Willie Howard, Miss Mamie O'Keefe.
7. Quartette—"The Parting, Now Good Bye"—Wood—E. H. Stearns, E. L. Van Gend, W. H. Preston, J. E. Morris.
8. Recitation—"Genevra"—Susan Coolidge—Miss Leila Richardson.

At a meeting of the Ladies' Memorial association, which was held Tuesday afternoon at the young men's library, it was decided to call a meeting of all the women of Atlanta at the library Friday morning at 11 o'clock.

Every one will be requested to be prepared at this meeting with the subscription to the memorial fund of Jefferson Davis. It was decided to urge the ladies of Atlanta to generously meet the appeal. It was the sentiment of the memorial association that it is a matter of great importance that the amount raised—whatever it is—should represent the largest possible number, and everybody is invited to subscribe, if it is only a small sum.

Mrs. I. Johnson and Mrs. Ben Hill, Sr., were appointed to take charge of the movement.

The Christmas sale of things useful and beautiful for holiday gifts was opened yesterday morning at the Church of Our Father by the ladies of that church and all who went there for the buying of Christmas presents found something to please their fancy. A number of tables prettily arranged display all manner of attractive things. There are children's books, dainty pieces of bric-a-brac, aprons, baby caps, jacket bags, all made of the finest material and in the daintiest way. The ladies on the general committee for this sale are: Mrs. G. L. Chaney, Mrs. F. C. Swift and Mrs. A. V. Guide and they are assisted by many others. The little bazaar is a charming place, and all who go there this week between the hours of 10 a. m. and 10 p. m. will find many things to please and interest.

Mrs. Martin Amoroso is visiting relatives in New Orleans.

Miss Sallie May Hill, of Washington, Ga., is visiting Miss Elsie Howell at West End.

The charming and accomplished Mrs. Thomas M. Binford, of Richmond, Va., nee Miss Jennie Woolfolk, of Georgia, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. L. M. Thompson and sister, Miss Rowena McDonald, is visiting her sister, Mrs. A. H. Alfriend at West End. She will remain several weeks.

A Change of Owners.
Yesterday the bar garden, on Whitehall street, changed hands. It was opened by Mr. Kimbrough last summer, and on yesterday was purchased by Mr. G. Keeney, who has been bookkeeper for Mr. C. Johnson during the last eight months.

A Cough, Cold or Sore Throat should not be neglected. Brown's Bronchial Trochies are a simple remedy, and give prompt relief. 25 cts. a box.

Winter Supper.
An oyster supper will be given at the parsonage of Walker street church this evening, under the auspices of the Young People's Christian League of that church. Every one invited. Admission free.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY

THE AVERAGE man's constant aim as study is to make his income meet the demands of his family's wants. If he's a sensible man he well knows that he can't get "something for nothing." Whenever he reads of a scheme whereby the advertiser proposes to give him "something for nothing" he drops it like a hot potato.

He well knows that there are reliable and sham houses. If he is a man of judgment he has come to the conclusion that the manufacturer of an article has the advantage of the middleman or agent. Not only has the advantage in price, but coming daily in contact with the consumers of his wares he learns their wants and makes his goods accordingly.

This is what we wish to impress on your minds, to-wit: We are MANUFACTURERS OF GOOD CLOTHING ONLY.

We supply the consumers of clothing out of first hands. We aim to make only clothing that we can say: this is OUR clothing. Perfection is our standard; economy our watchword.
